SOCIOLOGY 102

St. Francis Xavier University Winter Term 2022 Mondays 13:15-14:05, Wednesdays 12:15-13:05 and Fridays 11:15-12:05 Mulroney Hall 2030

Instructor: Peter Lenco O Nicholson Tower 615 | T 867.4876 | E plenco@stfx.ca Office hours: Mondays 11:00-13:00, Tuesdays 9:00-11:00 and Wednesdays 8:00-10:00

Course Description

This course builds on the foundations of sociological theory, methods and historic considerations established in SOCI 101. Students will explore a range of topics dealing with various aspects of social inequality, culture, integration, and ideological conflict in both a Canadian and global context. This is a chance for new sociology students to engage with the issues and themes of sociology through original texts as course material. An emphasis will be placed on critical analysis combined with a sociological perspective. The goal is that students see the real, topical focus of sociology and how it is different from other disciplines. There is a lot of room here for lively discussion and debate, so it is hoped that students come to see the appeal of sociology and have fun with it.

By the end of the course students will have had the opportunity to develop what they have learned about the foundations and scope of sociology as well as improve their familiarity with the ideas of some of its kev thinkers. Because the readings are primary sources, students will improve their ability to engage with technical, socialscientific literature. Finally, and no less importantly, students will develop their ability to discuss complex topics, improve their group work skills, and some time will be spent on developing students' ability to read and to write effectively in an academic setting.

Course Form

The sessions will consist of informal introductory lectures with room for questions and open discussion. Please note that the lectures will not be summaries of the texts, but are rather meant to supplement the texts and initiate analysis. Indeed, the goal of the classes will be to engage with the texts in a rigorous and thoughtful manner. We will also make extensive use of group discussions and problem-based learning. There are a number of guidelines that we will all follow to help ensure success for all in this course:

- If you have a question about the course, consult this course outline carefully. There is a good chance vou will find all the information vou need.
- We will adhere to the highest standards of personal communication and strive to be 100 per cent present for each other, which means listening attentively to whomever is speaking, no use of mobile devices, laptops, etc.

- There will be few slides and no overhead-presentations on the readings, so do be ready to take your own notes. To succeed in this course you need to engage with all aspects of it: readings, lectures and discussions. These last are an important way for you to explore – and so get to know and use – the variety of material. In sum: come to class and be ready to focus and participate.
- For reasons of class size but especially fairness there will be no make-ups or alternative assignments, unless for specific reasons you need accommodation (see below). Each student is responsible for what happens in class. If you are obliged to be absent, find another student who can catch you up.
- Please note that all aspects of this course adhere to the principle of equitable learning. Therefore I invite each member of the class to strive to promote a respectful, safe and equitable learning environment, free from any form of discrimination and harassment, both in person and online. Feel free to discuss any concerns regarding our learning environment with me, either in or before/after class, during office hours, or by phone or email.

Text

There is one reader for this course, available through the Campus Store:

Macionis, John, et al., eds. 2014. Seeing Ourselves: Classic, Contemporary, and Cross-cultural Readings in Sociology. 4th Canadian ed. Toronto: Pearson.

Readings for the first two weeks will be available on Moodle.

Evaluation

Attendance/Participation—10% Reading reflections (due 11 February, 25 March)—20% Midterm (4 March)—20% Paper (due 8 April)—20% Final Exam—30%

Attendance for the course is mandatory. Be sure to contact me in advance if you are going to be absent for any length of time (see Accommodation below). Participation is an important element of the course (not just for your participation mark), and students should make every effort to ask questions and to engage in discussions and group work.

For the two reading reflections students are asked to write three pages (~1000 words) on any reading in the syllabus. There is no set template, I am merely looking for evidence of thoughtful sociological engagement. What caught your interest in the reading? Why is it important? How does it relate to other sociological themes and other readings? Avoid summaries or "rehearsals"; I am interested here in what you can do with the content, not with your ability to describe it.

The paper should be a formal analysis of one of the themes of the course (gender, education, etc.). Start your planning process with questions like: Why is it of interest for sociologists and how do they go about addressing it? How does sociology change our way of thinking about these topics? You will be evaluated on your mastery of and critical engagement with sociological concepts and themes. See the grading rubric available on Moodle for more details. I encourage students to develop their own paper topics, and I welcome you to consult with me about this. To help you along, I will post a list of sample questions on Moodle closer to the due date. In all cases be sure to have a clear thesis statement and remember that papers that argue or try to establish a point are easier to write and easier to read. The papers should be approximately 1600 words in length.

There will be a brief midterm consisting of a choice of several short-answer questions. A closed-book, essaystyle exam will be scheduled during the regular examination period.

Guidelines for submission

Written assignments must be submitted in electronic copy via Moodle fifteen minutes before class on the due date. Late assignments will be penalized five percentage points per business day. If your circumstances warrant an extension without penalty, you must contact me (not via email) in a timely manner to make a formal request. I suggest you to use the American Sociological Association's (ASA) citation and referencing guidelines, information for which is available through the StFX Student Success Centre website. There is layout/formatting information there as well. Otherwise use one clear referencing system consistently, but whichever you use, I insist that you include page numbers when citing sources. It is up to you to track your own grades; they will not be posted electronically nor will I respond to email queries regarding them.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is the use of any source without acknowledging its author/creator and will not be tolerated in this course. Not only is it a serious breach of academic integrity, but it undermines the efforts of other course participants. You can read more about academic integrity in the current academic calendar in section 3.8. If you are unsure of anything, please ask me about it, or get assistance through the Student Success Centre. Remember: It is up to students to make sure they understand how this works, and there is no justification for plagiarism.

Contact

Please only email me (with "SOCI 102" in the subject line) if I can quickly read your email and then answer in a few words. Do write your emails in a professional manner with a salutation, a clear, properly punctuated body, a complimentary close, etc. For any communication more complex, students are welcome to visit, phone or MS Teams during office hours. Generally no appointment is necessary. If you have difficulty with these times, simply contact me to set up an alternative arrangement.

Accommodation

Any student that requires accommodation of any kind should contact me at the earliest opportunity so that the appropriate arrangements can be made. Also, please contact me at the outset of any prolonged illness or personal matter that might detract from your performance in the course. My goal is to help students navigate this course to a successful conclusion but you are responsible for communicating any potential challenges to me. I am here to support you but I cannot do this if I do not have all the information in a timely manner. Note that students may drop this course, online in Banner, on or before 22 March.

Copyright

There will potentially be considerable online content for this course. I remind you that course materials are designed exclusively for use in SOCI 102 at StFX University only and are the property of the instructor, unless otherwise stated by the instructor. Copying any material for distribution, online posting, or selling of this material to third parties without permission is strictly prohibited subject to Canadian copyright law.

Outline

Week 1: 17, 19, 21 January	Introduction, Gender	Seeing Ourselves, Chapters 31, 32 and 33.
Week 2 24, 26 January	Race and Ethnicity	Seeing Ourselves, Chapters 34 and 35.
Week 3 31 Jan., 2 and 4 February	The Economy and Work	Seeing Ourselves, Chapters 38, 39 and 40.
Week 4 7, 9, 11 February	Politics, Government and Military ►Attn: 1st reading reflection due 11 February	Seeing Ourselves, Chapters 41, 42 and 43.
Week 5 14, 16, 18 February	Religion	Seeing Ourselves, Chapters 47 and 48.
Week 6 28 Feb., 2 and 4 March	Over-/ re-view. ► Attn: Midterm 4 March	No reading
Week 7 7, 9, 11 March	Education	Seeing Ourselves, Chapters 50 and 51.
	Education Health and Medicine	Seeing Ourselves, Chapters 50 and 51. Seeing Ourselves, Chapters 53, 54 and 56.
7, 9, 11 March Week 8
7, 9, 11 March Week 8 14, 16, 19 March Week 9	Health and Medicine Population and Urbanization	Seeing Ourselves, Chapters 53, 54 and 56.
7, 9, 11 March Week 8 14, 16, 19 March Week 9 21, 23, 25 March Week 10	Health and Medicine Population and Urbanization ► Attn: 2nd reading reflection due 25 March	Seeing Ourselves, Chapters 53, 54 and 56. Seeing Ourselves, Chapters 57 and 59.